Admissions Update
Dr. Zina Evans, Associate Provost and Executive Director of Admissions, gave the committee an admissions update which contained the following information:

- Best academically prepared class, and the class size was a little smaller than anticipated – expected a 60% yield, but actual yield was 59%.
- The total number of African-American students decreased, so Admissions is looking at different ways to be sure this population knows all the opportunities that are available, especially financially.
- Legacies are holding strong at 35%, so over 1/3 of the class is represented by Legacies.
- The number of out-of-state students has dropped and as resources for the university decrease, recruitment of out-of-state students declined.
- The Office of Admissions is working on different plans for outreach to National Merit and National Scholarship students and has hired a new scholarship coordinator.
- Additionally, the office is working diligently to get the message out about how competitive transfer students have become. On the first day of class the university had received 1,728...
transfer students and last fall the number was 2,333 at the same point in time. 2,090 transfer students were admitted, which provided a yield of 1,728.

Provost Glover stated that they will discuss next year how to balance these numbers so transfer students do not take the brunt of any enrollment reductions.
